TRUCK TOURISTS TO BE WELCOMED HERE THIS EVENING

Boys' Band Will Furnish Music and Welcome Will Be Given Tourists Who Are Hoo-ing More Extensive Use of Motor Truck.

Arrangements are now complete for the visit here this evening of a caravan of twenty-five large motor trucks. The trucks are expected to arrive in the city late this afternoon and the meeting scheduled will likely be held about 7:30 this evening.

While it has been announced that the meeting will be held in front of the court house, it is more than likely that these arrangements will be somewhat changed when it becomes known by the members of the party that our famous Boys' Band is going to serenade them from their band stand in Market street and it is probable that the meeting will be held at the band stand.

While the party of tourists carry with them a Jazz Band, Maysville intends to show them that we have the best music in Kentucky right here in Maysville.

There will be several speakers with the party who will explain the advantages of the use of trucks on the farms throughout this section of Kentucky. These speakers are said to be experts in farm efficiency and they will probably tell the farmers of this section something well worth hearing. While the scheme is an advertising scheme in a manner, no particular trucks are boasted, it is said, and only the truck in general is presented to the public. The committee on arrangements have now completed their plans and it is more than likely that as soon as it is ascertained that the trucks are near Maysville, a party composed of committee men and prominent citizens will drive out of the city to welcome and pilot the caravan into town.

SCHOOL PROPERTY TO BE INSPECTED.

Members of the City Board of Education will make an inspection tour of the various school buildings on next Sunday to see that they are in first-class condition for the opening of school on Tuesday. There has been more work done on the city school property this vacation than in years and all of the buildings are expected to be in the best shape possible.

All union butcher shops will close at noon Monday—Labor Day. 18Sep3t

COMMON SCHOOL GRADUATES RECEIVE DIPLOMAS AT HOME

Graduates of Each School in the County To Receive Diplomas at Their Home School.

Superintendent Turnipseed this morning announced at the session of the Teachers' Institute that diplomas for the seventy-four boys and girls of the County Schools who passed the Common School examination were now ready to be delivered and he is today turning over to the teachers the diplomas for the children in their schools.

In the past there has been a general central graduation exercise held in Maysville most generally during Institute week, when the graduates of all the schools have received these certificates but it has been found that when exercises are held in each school the parents of the children take more interest and attend better, the children are better pleased and the system does the local school more good.

This system has been developed and will be used throughout the county this year.

SECOND DAY OF CANVASS INCREASES BOYS' BAND FUND

Committee Continues Canvass for the Band Fund and Many Contributions Are Being Accepted.

Members of the managing committee of the Maysville Boys' Band announce that they have met with much success during the second day of the canvass for funds to finance the organization during the next year. While there are many of the most liberal supporters of the organization out of the city this week, the fund has grown wonderfully and the amount set by the committee as enough to assure the financial success of the entire year is now in sight.

Every person asked to make a contribution has taken occasion to praise the band and everyone is saying that it is the best advertising proposition the city has had for many years.

While the business and professional men of the city have furnished practically all of the money to pay the band's expenses, all citizens are given an opportunity to contribute and while most of the contributors make their contributions on the monthly basis, smaller cash contributions are being received and many have said $5, $10 or $15 in cash toward the fund.

The committee did not announce the total of the fund at present today but said that they were very much encouraged and felt certain that they would procure the $5,000 before the campaign was closed. Today will probably be the last day of the active campaign although contributions will be accepted at any time.

MORTGAGED COWS BELONGING TO OTHERS

Elmer Cochrane, whose home is near Route's Ferry, on the Ohio side of the river, was arrested on Tuesday last week at Constance, Ky., by the sheriff of Brown county, Ohio, and placed in jail at Georgetown. A few weeks ago Cochrane was arrested on a charge of mortgaging two cows belonging to Captain Drew Edgington who let Cochrane have the cows to feed for him. The warrant was sworn out by O. P. Cahill, of Georgetown, who put no $100 on the strength of this bogus warrant. When arrested at that time, Cochrane asked permission to hunt a bondsman, which request was granted, but instead of doing this the prisoner disappeared and was not heard from until Sunday night, August 22, when he was in Augusta, en route to his home. The sheriff learned of this visit and laid plans to trap him, but Cochrane again disappeared and went to Constance where he was arrested. The chances are very much in favor of the prisoner being sent to the pen for his crime. — Augusta Chronicle.

MAKING MOONSHINE BRANDY.

Tuesday Sheriff J. F. Hart and deputies Arnold Hart and Hiram Jackson went to the home of J. Sexton, about a mile east of Hillsboro, and captured a moonshine brandy still, made from a lard can, a coal oil can and some iron and wooden pipes. The still had been turning out a product which had so much "kick" in it that it was disturbing the peace of the neighborhood. It seems that Sexton had been given a "tip" that the officers were coming, and so far he has not been captured. But as he is a Government pensioner, drawing down $125 per month from Uncle Sam, he will have to show up when he wants to cash his pay check, and he cannot hope to long escape facing the consequences of his misdoings. — Flemingsburg Times-Democrat.

JUVENILE COURT ACT PLAYED BY JUDGE KERR

Prominent Jurist Says Latest Child's Court Bill of State Is Iniquitous and Sees It As Being Invalid.

Declaring that the Juvenile Court Act of the 1920 Kentucky Legislature "possesses to a rare degree all the iniquities that result from hasty legislation, carelessly drawn laws," Judge Charles Kerr, Lexington, of the Fayette County Circuit Court, takes his makers over the coal in an opinion copies of which were received here yesterday.

"It would tax one's power of research to find a piece of legislation that has so little to commend it as this particular act," according to Judge Kerr. He declares that if the father of the law "had in contemplation the child that was actually born he has certainly added to the illegitimate legislation in Kentucky its rarest product."

The opinion concludes with the regret that there is no legislative hospital, presided over by a corps of trained legal physicians, whose business it is to treat deformed, diseased, defective and perverted legislation, and if found incurable to chloroform it," who, Judge Kerr asserts, would have similarly treated the Juvenile Court Act.

GRAND JURY EXAMINES COAL COMPANY'S BOOKS.

After having made a perusal of the records of a number of coal companies of the Eastern District of Kentucky, the Federal grand jury which convened in the United States Court at Covington Monday adjourned until next week, when additional investigation of alleged profiteering and price fixing will be made.

Books of the various companies were placed in the office of Thomas D. Slattery, United States District Attorney, where they are to remain until the grand jury has finished its work. A large number of people from the coal fields who had been summoned as witnesses were permitted to return home and an additional number has been subpoenaed for next week.

IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN IN GENERAL CONDITION OF CROPS

Tobacco Crop Over Federal Reserve District Is Late—Fruit Crop Is a Bumper.

The Monthly Business Review of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank issued Wednesday says: There has been a marked improvement in growing crops since July 1, especially oats, corn, potatoes and hay. Corn, barley, spring wheat, and buckwheat are well above the ten-year average, while oats, rye, and potatoes are only slightly below.

Threshing of wheat is much later than usual, but is now well advanced. Many farmers are rushing their grain to market, but the advice of the Farm Bureau heads is to store the grain rather than accept the low price offered.

The corn crop shows an improved condition from one month ago and the estimated production is now 7,000,000 bushels above the ten-year average. Notwithstanding below normal temperatures, favorable weather has kept corn growing and unless caught by an early frost it will prove a bumper crop.

While the oat crop was planted unusually late, weather conditions have been especially favorable and the crop will run approximately 10,000,000 bushels in excess of that of last year. The quality of the grain is reported as excellent.

The tobacco crop generally throughout the district was planted late and has not made the progress hoped for. It is said that there will probably be a large amount of the so-called dark tobacco, while the lighter Hurley leaf will probably be short.

It is estimated that the apple crop in Ohio will run 10½ million bushels compared to less than 3,000,000 last year. Peaches show a 90 per cent. condition on August 1 as compared with 16 per cent. a year ago. It is estimated that the Ottawa-Sandusky district will ship 400,000 bushels, of which 50 per cent will be Elberts, and will commence to move from September 1 to 15. About 20 per cent. Lemon-free shall begin to move by September 15. Grapes show a condition of 90 per cent., which will be slightly in excess of last year's crop and considerably above the ten-year average.

Dr. Louis Grimes, of Concord, was in Maysville today on business.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE IN BROWN COUNTY

Storm of Last Friday Night Did Much Damage to Property and Crops in Ripley Neighborhood.

The Ripley Bee says: A violent electrical storm struck this section last Friday night, accompanied by rain and wind, doing considerable damage.

James T. Henderson, residing on the Gooselick pike, had a barn and contents destroyed by lightning. The barn contained all of his farming implements, hay, 68 bushels of wheat and his entire crop of tobacco which he had just finished hounding that day. Insurance on barn $200; on contents $100 with the Campbell agency.

The barn and corn crib of Harry White near Bentonville were destroyed the same night.

John Bick had a horse killed in the field, and Charlie Sneed lost a cow. A barn on Geo. Germann's farm was struck by lightning twice but was only slightly damaged. A number of telephone lines were put out of commission and other minor damage done.

Mr. Carey Alexander, of Eekmansville, was in town Monday and reports that a heavy hailstorm visited that section last Saturday evening, inflicting great damage on crops. About 60 or 70 acres of good tobacco was destroyed and corn was badly cut up.

Some idea of the destructiveness of the hail may be had by looking in E. C. Campbell's window at samples of tobacco from Lee Stevenson's farm. Mr. Stevenson had 7½ acres destroyed.

MASON COUNTIAN AGAIN IS HONORED BY HIS COMRADES

Mr. W. H. Robb Re-Elected Vice-President of Morgan Men's Association — Mr. Walter Matthews on Executive Committee.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 2. — The eighteenth annual session of the Morgan's Men's Association began yesterday at Olympia Springs, W. H. Robb, first vice president, presiding in the absence of President Steve C. Sharp, whose arrival was delayed by the breaking down of his automobile while en route from Covington.

A brief night session also was held and old songs of the South were sung by the veterans, many of their admirers, guests of the hotel, joining in the singing.

Statements in regard to the death of General Morgan at Greenville, Tenn., where he was killed, and a letter from a Federal soldier in which the facts of the General's untimely end were recounted were read at the afternoon session. It was brought out that the General was actually killed by a Federal soldier named Donald Campbell, and that he received a promotion for his services in freeing the Federals of the menace of the dashing Confederate cavalry leader. Thirty-seven of the veterans had registered this morning for the reunion, eleven less than the total a year ago.

The association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: First Vice President, W. H. Robb, Helena Station; second vice president, W. J. Stone, Frankfort; third vice president, Billy Blackburn, Georgetown; Executive Committee, George Taylor, Nicholasville; A. W. Macklin, Frankfort; C. H. Meng, North Middletown; J. H. Haggard, Georgetown; and Walter Matthews, Maysville. President Steve C. Sharp, Covington, and Secretary Horace Taylor, Carlisle, were elected last year for life.

HARDING GLAD AMERICANS ARE A FREE PEOPLE

In Speech to Indiana Delegation
Republican Nominee Declares for Security at Home.

EUROPE HAS EVEN NOW
QUIT WILSON'S LEAGUE

Yet Democratic Party Leaders Would Have Us Bound by Original Pact
With No American Safeguards.

"STEADY AMERICA!"

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unalterable in security and supremacy of the law."

"Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling."

"Steady America! Let us assure good fortune to all."

—Senator Warren G. Harding in address before the Indiana delegation at Marion.

Marion, O. (Special).—Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, in a speech delivered to a delegation from Indiana which called on him here to pledge the support of Indiana Republicans, declared that twice President Wilson had an opportunity to obtain ratification of the League of Nations covenant and that he put ratification aside because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. Senator Harding said:

"I greet you in a spirit of rejoicing; not a rejoicing in the narrow personal or partisan sense, not in the gratifying prospects of party triumph; not in the contemplation of abundance in the harvest fields and ripening corn fields and maturing orchards; not in the reassuring approach of stability after a period of wiggling and wobbling which magnified our uncertainty—though all of these are ample for our wide rejoicing—but I rejoice that America is still free and independent and in a position of self-reliance and holds to the right of self-determination, which are priceless possessions in the present turbulence of the world."

"Let us suppose the senate had ratified the peace treaty containing the league covenant as submitted to it by the president in July of last year, what would be the situation confronting our common country today? To my mind there is but one answer. Before this day we would have been called upon to fulfill the obligations which we had assumed under Article 10 of the league covenant, to preserve the territorial integrity of Poland 'as against external aggression.'"

Sympathy for Poland.
"I shall not now attempt to measure the boundless sympathy for the just aspirations and restored independence of Poland. Our present concern is the international situation which Poland has brought to our attention."

"The council of the League of Nations would have reasoned, and reasoned correctly, that the United States could furnish the munitions and, if necessary, the men to withstand the hordes advancing from Russia far more easily than could the exhausted nations of Europe. Moreover, inasmuch as this would be the first test of the scheme of world government which was formulated and demanded by the President, speaking for the United States, the fact of a special responsibility, resting upon our shoulders, manifestly would have been undeniable. Undoubtedly the league council, in 'advising upon the means' by which the obligations to Poland should be fulfilled, as provided in the covenant, would have so held, and probably the conscience of America, certainly the opinion of the world, would have sustained that judgment. "The conclusion that our country might now be confronted by such a situation, if the senate had ratified the league covenant, requires no stretch of the imagination. None can deny that it is possible. To many candid minds, as to my own, such a distressing situation will seem highly probable. Let us assume that the ratification had taken place. Let us assume, further, that the performance of the allied task required the waging of war upon the Russian people. As, of course, it would, what would result? What would of necessity have to result? Nothing necessarily, we are glibly informed, since only the Congress can declare war, and the Congress might reject the appeal of the executive. But would the Congress do that? Could the Congress do that without staining indelibly the honor of the nation?"

Answer is "No."

"I answer 'No,' and I say it not on my own authority alone. Back of my judgment stands the President of the United States. Upon that point there is first-hand information. In the course of the discussion which took place at the meeting of the President and the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations I raised the question by stating a hypothetical case precisely analogous to that which I have depicted, and then inquired whether we might not rightfully be regarded as a perfidious people if we should fail to contribute an armed force, if called upon to do so. The President first replied, as I thought somewhat evasively, that we 'would be our own judges as to whether we were obliged in those circumstances to act in that way or not. Pressed further, however, in response to a query incorporating the assumption that 'the case provided for and prescribed had arisen' and that 'the extraneous attack did exist precisely as it does exist today in Poland,' the President admitted specifically that 'we would be untrue if we did not keep our word.'"

"Replying further to a question which perhaps I ought not to have considered necessary, the President pronounced a moral obligation 'of course, superior to a legal obligation' and of 'a greater binding force.'"

"What, then, becomes of the argument that Congress, not the President, in this instance at any rate, might keep us out of war? Technically, of course, it could do so. Morally, with equal certainty, it could not do so nor would it ever do so. The American people would never permit a repudiation of a debt of honor."

"Am I not right, my countrymen, in saying that we needed only the outbreak of war between Poland and Russia to make us realize at least one of the things which, in the words of Secretary Lansing, we would have been 'let in for,' but for the restraining hand of the senate, and to fetch hema to us the danger of committing our country in advance to causes that we know not of?"

Not Our Purpose.

"One can have no quarrel with those who have convinced themselves that their underlying purpose in entering the great conflict was to create a league of nations. The fact remains, however, that no such intent was officially proclaimed, no allusion, nor even a suggestion to that effect appeared in the joint resolution of Congress which declared the existence of a state of war between this country and Germany. For myself I left no room for doubt of the motives which led me to cast my vote in favor of that resolution. It so happened that I made the concluding speech upon the war resolution, from my place in the senate, on the night of April 4, 1917. These were my own words at that time:

"I want it known to the people of my state and to the nation that I am voting for war tonight for the maintenance of just American rights, which is the first essential to the preservation of the soul of this republic."

"I vote for this joint resolution to make war, not a war thrust upon us, if I could choose the language of the resolution, but a war declared in response to affronts; a war that will at least put a soul into our American life; a war not for the cause of the allies of Europe; a war not for France, beautiful as the sentiment may be in reviving at least our gratitude to the French people; not precisely a war for civilization, worthy and inspiring as that would be; but a war that speaks for the majesty of a people properly governed, who finally are brought to the crucial test where they are resolved to get together and wage a conflict for the maintenance of their rights and the preservation of the covenant inherited from their fathers."

"We have given to the world the spectacle of a great nation that could make war without selfish intent. We unsheathed the sword some eighteen years ago for the first time in the history of the world, in the name of humanity, and we gave proof to the world at that time of an unselfish action. Now, whether it is the fate, or fortune, or travail of destiny, it has come to us to unsheathe the sword again, not alone for humanity's sake—through that splendid inspiration will be involved—but to unsheathe the sword against a great power in the maintenance of the rights of the people, in the maintenance of the right to a new guaranty of nationality. That's the great thing, and I want it known, Mr. President and senators, that this is the impelling thought with me for one, when I cast my vote."

For Same Guaranty Today.

"It is for that same guaranty of nationality that I stand today, and shall continue to stand inflexibly, so long as I shall be permitted to live. The independence of our great republic is to me a priceless and sacred inheritance. Time was when an American did not hesitate to proclaim himself a patriot. To do so now, I am well aware, is sometimes to invite the sneers of cynicism. But why should any true American not be free to say: 'I am a patriot, wholly avowed to my country, which I hold to be God's best inspiration to man for higher attainment and the promotion of the world's best civilization?'"

"But I have a special reason for making this reference today. I challenge the statement that the patriotism which holds America first comprehends either narrowness or selfishness, or as implying tacit suspicion and jealousy of other peoples."

"To assert, as some have asserted heedlessly, that those of us who honestly believe that America can best serve all mankind as America, free and untrammelled, rather than as one in a pitiable minority among many states in merged world government, lack consciousness of the rightful demands of humanity, is to utter a gross and unpardonable libel. To attribute meanness to those of us who, in the performance of our public duty, refused to participate in what was sincerely regarded as a betrayal of our own country in the interest of others, is to discredit the intelligence and discrimination of the great mass of American people who directly, by their votes, put us in our positions of trust. For myself, I yield to no man in willingness, eye, in eagerness, to render the greatest conceivable assistance to the stricken peoples of Europe. I include all of them and speak with a genuinely sympathetic heart, whether it is to mention devastated France, or sorely tried Italy, or nobly struggling Poland, or distracted and misguided Russia, or gallant little Belgium, or pitifully deceived Austria, or the ruthless invader, Germany, which came to the supreme tragedy through a leadership which brought disaster to her misguided people."

"It was with that feeling of sympathy and desire to serve, that most reluctantly and with grave misgivings, as I announced at the time, I with reservations designed to preserve our essential liberty of action. The record is made, and under the same conditions, confronted by the same alternative, I should vote now as I voted then."

Conditions Have Changed.

"But the conditions have changed. Experience has brought enlightenment. We know now that the league constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventive of wars. It is so obviously impotent that it has not even been tried. The original league, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the possibility of resurrection."

"The mature judgment of the world will be that it deserved to pass for the very simple reason that, contrary to all of the tendencies developed by the civilizing processes of the world, it rested upon the power of might, not of right."

"The assertion is made frequently that through the surrender of our nationality we might have saved the life of the covenant—that is to say, that, although twenty-eight nations could not make it function, one added to the twenty-eight would have achieved a glowing success, provided, always, that the one were America."

"This pays to America the tribute of exceptional influence, but I suggest that if the world is dependent upon our action to bring about the supreme realization, then we ought to have the say about our own freedom in participating therein. But let us consider what is meant by this reliance upon America. What can it signify if not that it is to the United States, and to the United States alone, that the other twenty-eight nations look for the bone and sinew, the money, the munitions and the men to sustain the entire organization, not as an agency of peace, but as an armed force?"

"A Telling Admission.
"A few days ago a delegation of an organization which calls itself a Society for the Prevention of War appeared to the premier of Great Britain to unite and use the powers of the world in defense of America, and the Dardanelles. The British premier replied, according to his remarks quoted by the newspapers, to the effect that, while the formation of 'an international army' would be 'an ideal solution,' it could not be accomplished because the European nations could not furnish the troops and the United States had 'withdrawn from co-operation'—a polite and diplomatic phrase and more exactly meaning, of course, that the senate of the United States had not completed the partial obligation assumed by the President to do that very thing—that is, to 'furnish the troops.'"

"Could a clearer indication of what would have been expected of this country as a member of the league be desired? Hardly. Some, too, think, or say they think, that this extraordinary service should be rendered. I do not agree with them, but, assuming that they are right, I venture to note that nothing stands in the way of performance. The President has only to call upon Congress to declare war, and to confer upon him specific authority to raise armies for the protection of the powers which, though recently associated with, are still foreign to our own republic."

"It is reasonably safe to assume, however, that the President will not pursue this course. Fortunately, he is under no 'compelling moral obligation' under the league to do so. His recent unhappy experience, moreover, in asking Congress to send American boys to police Armenia would hardly encourage repetition of a request already courteously but quite firmly declined by the Congress. What then, in like circumstances, would be the answer of the British premier himself? In his own words, addressing a meeting of the Coalition Liberals on August 12 last, according to the press reports, he said:

"When the terrible question of peace or war has to be decided, our first duty as a government is to the people, who trust us not to commit their treasure to any unjustifiable adventure. Nothing but the most imperative call of national honor, national safety and national freedom can justify war. Before this country is committed to it, even in the most limited form, we must be satisfied that these are in peril."

"I quote these telling words, my countrymen, with the utmost satisfaction, because with one amendment they express to a nicety my own position. I take for granted, that the prime minister meant to include in 'treasure' the greatest treasure of all, but, for myself, I should leave nothing to be inferred. Foremost and above all else to be safeguarded by those of us who hold the trust of the people, it goes without saying, but cannot be too often repeated, is the manhood of the nation."

tion. The mature judgment of the world will be that it deserved to pass for the very simple reason that, contrary to all of the tendencies developed by the civilizing processes of the world, it rested upon the power of might, not of right."

"The assertion is made frequently that through the surrender of our nationality we might have saved the life of the covenant—that is to say, that, although twenty-eight nations could not make it function, one added to the twenty-eight would have achieved a glowing success, provided, always, that the one were America."

"This pays to America the tribute of exceptional influence, but I suggest that if the world is dependent upon our action to bring about the supreme realization, then we ought to have the say about our own freedom in participating therein. But let us consider what is meant by this reliance upon America. What can it signify if not that it is to the United States, and to the United States alone, that the other twenty-eight nations look for the bone and sinew, the money, the munitions and the men to sustain the entire organization, not as an agency of peace, but as an armed force?"

A Telling Admission.

"A few days ago a delegation of an organization which calls itself a Society for the Prevention of War appeared to the premier of Great Britain to unite and use the powers of the world in defense of America, and the Dardanelles. The British premier replied, according to his remarks quoted by the newspapers, to the effect that, while the formation of 'an international army' would be 'an ideal solution,' it could not be accomplished because the European nations could not furnish the troops and the United States had 'withdrawn from co-operation'—a polite and diplomatic phrase and more exactly meaning, of course, that the senate of the United States had not completed the partial obligation assumed by the President to do that very thing—that is, to 'furnish the troops.'"

WILL NOT MISUSE POWER.

"Now, it may appear to you that I have been speaking chiefly in the negative. I make the admission. What is more, I might continue to do so almost indefinitely without disadvantage to our cause. So many things have been done by the present expiring administration that no power on earth could induce me to do, that I cannot even attempt to recount them. I may remark casually, however, that if I should be, as I fully expect to be, elected President of this just and honorable republic, I will not empower an assistant secretary of the navy to draft a constitution for helpless neighbors in the West Indies and jam it down their throats at the point of bayonets borne by United States marines. We have a higher service for our gallant marines than that. Nor will I misuse the power of the executive to cover with a veil of secrecy repeated acts of unwarranted interference in domestic affairs of the little republics of the western hemisphere, such as in the past few years have not only made enemies of those who should be our friends, but have rightfully discredited our country as their trusted neighbor."

Will Submit to No Wrong.

"On the other hand, I will not or shall not, as you prefer, submit to any wrong against any American citizen, with respect to either his life or his property, by any government. This statement is made in all solemnity for all. If it particularly applies to Mexico, the application has been directed by the robbery and murder of hundreds of our own people in that unhappy country who were lawfully there and were entitled to protection. One must admit that these outrages upon Americans are largely the consequences of the wiggling and wobbling, the supine waiting of our own government, though the admission neither helps the hurt, nor gives the hope of security for the future while the present administration remains in power, or when one in "complete accord" succeeds it.

"This admonition is not directed exclusively toward our next door neighbor to whom we would gladly hold forth a helping hand, and whom primarily, certainly in preference to far off peoples in Europe, Asia and Africa, it is our manifest duty to serve with a whole heart and generous tolerance. It is intended for a plain notice to every government on the face of the earth that the entire resources of this nation are pledged to maintain the sacredness of American lives and the just protection of American properties.

Line of Demarcation Plain.

"The line of demarcation between our attitude and that of our political opponents is perfectly plain. The president has made his position clear by his acts no less than by his words. Twice there came to him an opportunity to obtain ratification at the hands of the senate and twice he put the opportunity aside, because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. He still holds Article 10 to be the heart of the covenant. So does the Democratic platform. So does the Democratic nominee. To assume that the nominee would accept the reservations rejected by the President and denounce by the party platform is to impugn his integrity. To insinuate, as those who in proclaiming themselves for the Democratic candidate and 'the league with reservations' do insinuate that he would pursue such a course in seeking ratification is not to pay him a compliment, but rather to challenge his sincerity.

"For myself I do not question for a moment the truth of what the Democratic nominee says on this subject. He has flatly said he is 'in favor of going in' on the basis announced by the President. I am not. That is the whole difference between us, but it is a most vital one, because it involves the disparity between a world court of justice supplemented by a world association for conference, on the one hand, and the council of the league, on the other.

"The difference between a court of international justice and the council created by the league covenant is profound.

tual. The condition now is wholly different. Not only Germany, but the entire world has profited to the extent of an awful object lesson, the impression of which cannot be erased from the human mind for generations to come. The horrors of war and the eagerness for peace have become universal. What once seemed at this Hague to be a mere academic discussion has become a positive, outstanding need of facing terrifying actualities. This makes vastly easier the task of so strengthening The Hague tribunal as to render its just decrees either acceptable or enforceable. It is not uncommon for the advocates of the league of Versailles to contrast unfavorably The Hague tribunal upon the ground that the tribunal 'lacks teeth.'

Let's Install the Teeth.

"Very well, then, let's put teeth in it. If, in the failed league of Versailles, there can be found machinery which the tribunal can use properly and advantageously, by all means let it be appropriated. I would even go further. I would take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad from both organizations. This statement is broad enough to include the suggestion that if the league, which has heretofore riveted our considerations and apprehensions, has been so entwined and interwoven into the peace of Europe, that its good must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent, then it can be amended or revised so that we may still have a remnant of world aspirations in 1918 heeded into the world's highest conception of helpful co-operation in the ultimate realization.

"I believe humanity would welcome the creation of an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justiciable questions, this country in common with all nations would be both willing and able to uphold. The decision of such a court or the recommendations of such a conference could be accepted without sacrificing our part or asking any other power to sacrifice one iota of its nationality.

"The Democratic nominee has spoken about America abandoning her associates in war and deserting the allied nations in establishing the league of Versailles. I do not think it longer necessary to challenge that statement or pass further opinion upon the unfortunate league. It has already been abandoned by Europe, which had gone so far as to accept it by formal agreement in treaty. On this subject, we are fully informed at first hand. Only the other day the British premier said unreservedly that the essential co-operation of America might involve 'some change' at any rate, in the form of the covenant, and he added, with characteristic outspokenness, 'It is quite possible it might be a change for the better.'

"Listen, further, to the wise and far-seeing, former British ambassador, who was not permitted to present his credentials to our executive.

On Our Own Terms.

"As long," said Viscount Grey, hardly a month ago, 'as long as the richest, most powerful, the greatest, both for population and territory, of the civilized countries of the world stands outside the league, the league will be unable to fulfill its destiny. To put it in quite plain terms, the Americans must be told that if they will only join the league they can practically name their own terms.' Undoubtedly that is the fact. I ask: Is there any good reason why we should not avail ourselves of this privilege? I do not mean in any arrogant or selfish way, but simply as a matter of fairness and right to our own people. Surely it is becoming, and a duty as well, to safeguard our own people, since it is we who are the main contributors, while asking nothing for ourselves except to participate in a contribution to the promotion of world peace.

A Valued Suggestion.

"Viscount Grey continues: 'The Americans should be entrusted with the task of drafting a reconstruction scheme.' Then he suggests further that 'a committee of the senate—we must never forget the senate's rights and duties in regard to foreign affairs being re-enforced by the members of the house of representatives, and also by nominees of the President, and Supreme Court—could draw up suggestions for the reconstruction of the league, which would be consonant with the feeling not of one, but of all parties in America.'

"Frankly, I value that suggestion very highly, because it is proffered obviously in a helpful and friendly spirit and reveals an important old world opinion on the necessity of amendment, revision or reconstruction. It comprehends substantially what I would propose to do if elected president. I do not mean precisely that. It would be clearly unwise to undertake specific suggestions or to attempt to pass upon suggestions now. What is in my mind is the wisdom of calling into real conference the ablest and most experienced minds of this country, from whatever walks of life they may be derived and without regard to party affiliation, to formulate a definite, practical plan along the lines already indicated for the consideration of the controlling foreign powers.

"The objection, strongly uttered in some quarters, that this course would involve the reconvening of the entire convention may be regarded as a very slight one. The acceptance of our proposals by the few principal nations would undoubtedly be followed promptly by the acceptance on the part of the minor members of the alliance.

"There would be no material delay. One can not disregard the leadership or have any doubt about the influence of the principal allied and associated powers. Insofar as I could do so, without disregarding the proprieties, I should give very earnest and practically undivided attention to this very vital subject from the day of my election and I should ask others to do likewise as a matter of public and patriotic duty. Indeed, I should hope to have behind me, after the decision on the national referendum, we are soon to have, a country wholly united in earnest endeavor to achieve a true solution of this problem upon which the future civilization so largely depends.

Already Announced.

"I have already announced that I shall urge prompt passage of the resolution, vetoed by the president, declaring an end to the preposterous condition of technical war when we are actually at peace. Simultaneously, I shall naturally advise the resumption by the Congress of its exceptional powers, which have been vested by law in the executive. I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany.

"In view of the simple fact that the allied powers with whom we were associated in the war have already formally concluded their peace, the passage of the peace resolution by congress would merely give formal recognition to an obvious fact.

Our Unselfishness Emphasized.

"Let us take stock for a moment of America in the world, age, and of America at home. The end of the war found our unselfishness emphasized to all mankind, and the garlands of world leadership were bestowed from every direction. We had only to follow the path of America, rejoicing in the inheritance which led to our eminence, to rivet the gaze of all peoples upon our standards of national righteousness and our conception of international justice. Moreover, the world was ready to give us its confidence. It was the beckoning opportunity of the centuries, not for the glorification of the new world republic, but for America to hold every outpost of advancing civilization and invite all nations to join the further advance to heights dreamed of, but never approached before. But force of example was flung aside for force of armed alliance. We neglected our readjustments and restorations at home, and the cruel sacrifice of millions of lives and billions of treasures left us and the world groping in uncertainty and anxiety instead of revealing us in the sunlight of a new day, with lines formed, ready for the onward march of peace and all its triumphs.

Let's Resume Our Place.

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unflinching in security and supremacy of the law. Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling. Steady, America! Let us assure good fortune to all. We may maintain our eminence as a great people at home and resume our high place in the estimate of the world. Our moral leadership was lost when 'Ambition' sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited autocracy upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy. My chief aspiration, my countrymen, if clothed with power, will be to regain that lost leadership not for myself, not even for my party, though honoring and trusting it as I do, but for my country, the country that I love from the bottom of my heart and with every fiber of my being above all else in the world."

OIL TOWN MAKES GREATEST GAIN IN STATE.

Washington, Sept. 2. — Irvine, Kentucky, gained 849.5 per cent, in population in ten years, the Census Bureau announced last night.

The oil industry transformed a village of 272 persons in 1910 to a thriving little city of 2,705 inhabitants. Towns in Western states have experienced greater gains but Irvine leads in Kentucky.

Bell county increased 5,541 or 19.5 per cent. The 1920 population is 33,988. In 1910 the increase for a decade was 81.2 per cent.

Grant county decreased 146 or 1.4 per cent. The 1920 population is 10,435.

Hoke Smith, who is now contesting for renomination as United States Senator from Georgia, was born at Newton, S. C., 65 years ago today.

FAINTING AND DIZZY SPELLS

The Cause of such Symptoms and Remedy Told in This Letter.

Syracuse, N. Y. — "When I commenced the Change of Life I was poorly, had no appetite and had fainting spells. I suffered for two or three years before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Liver Pills which I saw advertised in the papers and in your little books. I took about twelve bottles of your Vegetable Compound and found it a wonderful remedy. I commenced to pick up at once and my suffering was relieved. I have told others about your medicine and know of some who have taken it. I am glad to help others all I can." — Mrs. R. E. DEXTER, 437 W. Lafayette Ave., Syracuse, N. Y.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moreover this reliable remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs and owes its efficiency to the medicinal extracts of the native roots and herbs which it contains.

AGRICULTURAL EXPERT ADDRESSES THE INSTITUTE

Attendance Continues Large and Interest Keen in Annual Meeting of Mason County School Teachers.

(By Prof. R. Y. MAXEY.)

Thursday morning's session of the county teachers' institute opened pleasantly with the splendid singing of Mr. Carson Taylor who has delighted the teachers several times this week.

Doctor J. L. Lock was again in the institute and made a plea for the teachers to busy themselves in raising funds to help buy an automobile for the county health nurse. The doctor showed that Mason county was favored by the public health service above any other county in the state that has a county health officer and county health nurse in that Mason county receives one and one-half dollars for every dollar that the county puts up while the other counties were receiving dollar for dollar.

Supt. King then took the floor in his splendid talk on "The Daily Program," laying great stress on the opening exercises, saying same should be varied and affording the element of surprise each morning for as was the beginning so would be the end. In other words the beginning period determines the success or failure of the day's work, and oftentimes a life career.

In the period immediately preceding noon Mr. King delivered a strong address on "School Government." The afternoon session was made interesting by parting talks from Mr. Carson Taylor of the Baptist Theological Seminary, and Miss Georgia Dunn, of the Kentucky Children's Home, both of Louisville.

Mr. Charles A. Mosgrove, Kentucky University, gave a most interesting and helpful talk on agriculture, showing how agricultural clubs may be organized in schools and how they may become affiliated with the university department.

Mr. King finished the afternoon's work with one of his interesting talks on "The Background for Geography and History."

Delegates will meet here September 30 to ratify the charter and constitution and by-laws.

DOG'S LOYALTY MAY COST WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. J. C. Renaker, of Cynthia, Attempts Suicide and Dog Keeps Squealers Away From Body.

Cynthia, Ky., Sept. 2. — When a neighbor heard Mrs. Jesse Carter Renaker, druggist's wife, cry for help after she had taken poison yesterday afternoon, a pet bulldog stood guard at the door of the room and thwarted efforts to reach the unconscious woman.

The delay caused by the too zealous dog may cause Mrs. Renaker's life.

By the time her husband was communicated with and a physician obtained, she was in a critical condition. She was alone at home when she attempted to end her life.

Her husband, Houston Renaker, is unable to explain his wife's action. She is 32 years old. They have no children.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF STEALING SILK SOX.

Lula Green, colored, was arrested this afternoon by Acting Chief of Police P. Ryan, on a charge of petty larceny and in default of $100 bail was committed to jail. The woman is charged with having stolen valuable silk stockings in a washing. She will probably be given a hearing before Judge Whitaker Friday afternoon.

Fiftieth anniversary of the surrender of Sedan to the Germans.

Pastime Today

Universal presents HARRY CAREY and MARY CHARLSON in

Human Stuff

A story of the wild West and the "conventional" East. Many of the western scenes were filmed on Harry Carey's own ranch in San Francisco Canyon, California. The presence in the cast of Joe Marris and Charles Lewoyne, Carey's principal support in "Marked Men." The delightful acting of Carey's leading lady, Mary Charleson who in private life is Mrs. Henry B. Walthall, also the Harry Carey flying squadron of rough riding cowboys. Don't miss this rapid-fire western play.
